Flying around those who asleep,
Until the wings are tired.
Won't it disrupt a little their sleep,
If he buzzes in your ear persistently?
(author's translation)

Those lines from "Masa" describe Baitursynov's own ambition to awaken society from a passive, lazy, sleepy state to enlightenment through his persistent poetic and educational "buzzing". The ideological foundation of "Masa" was to invite the public to study art and receive a proper education, to develop culture and a work ethic.

Akhmet Baitursynuly, a linguist and the founder of Kazakh grammatology, is a unique scientist who studied a wide range of language issues in Kazakh linguistics, including writing from different angles. By reading and understanding works of the scientist, who lived a century ago, we can see his knowledge, critical thinking, his love for the language, devotion to science, comprehensive search, true compassion for the Kazakh people, boundless love for his country.
